JURY IN DEADLOCK IN TRIAL OF MAN ON CHARGE OF FORGERY

Deliberated Nearly Five Hours
Without Reaching Verdict

THE CASE IS CONTINUED

Bristol Man Said Ballot Was
8 for Acquittal and 4
for Conviction

DOYLESTOWN, June 4—Deliberating from 5:30 until 10 o'clock, a jury on Monday night was deadlocked on an eight-four ballot in the case of J. J. Walker, colored, Northampton county livestock dealer and farmer, who was tried here in criminal court on charges of uttering a forged instrument and being concerned in the uttering of a forged instrument.

When Judge Calvin S. Boyer, who presided at the trial which began Wednesday afternoon and was concluded late yesterday afternoon, was informed by the foreman, Alfred McLaughlin, Bristol, that the ballot of the jury was eight for acquittal and four for conviction and there was no chance of reaching an agreement, he ordered the case continued for the next term of criminal court in September.

The defendant was released on bail. The two addresses to the jury by Assistant District Attorney Willard S. Curtin and counsel for the defendant, William H. Schneller, of Catasauqua, and the charge by Judge Boyer, which lasted one hour and one-half, took from 3 until 5:30 o'clock. The trial involved the alleged forging of four notes bearing the names of Northampton county men and women and one

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

The Bucks County Scepticism Club members were entertained on Monday evening at the home of the president, Miss E. Helaine Lintelman, Doylestown.

Announcement has been made of the promotion of Joseph Flack, son of Assemblyman and Mrs. Roland Flack, of Doylestown. Mr. Flack, who has been secretary to the United States Embassy at Madrid, Spain, is enroute to Caracas, Venezuela, S. A., where he will be in charge of his new appointment.

It is thought that Mr. Flack will visit in the United States, enroute to South America. He has been in the diplomatic service since 1916, he having served in Washington, London, LaPaz, Bolivia, Paris, San Domingo, Vienna and Madrid.

"The Development of Christian Character" will be the subject upon which the Rev. H. W. Fitting will speak at the 13th annual community baccalaureate service of Quakertown high school which will be held in Quakertown high school auditorium, Sunday evening.

Included in the program will be special music, Mildred Ehn Johnson will render selections on the harp, and a brass quartet, composed of Robert Gulden, George Shelly, Donald Egner and Frank Egner, will take part in the program.

Members of the senior octet, Doris Fisher, Betty Roth, Virginia Hinkel, Rachel Willauer, George Shelly, Walter Landis and Donald and Frank Egner, will sing. Music will be rendered also by the combined choirs of the churches in the community under the direction of Charles Muehlhauser, Howard E. Shive and William Johnson will be the accompanists.

Commencement will be held on June 10th.

An address by Dr. H. B. Allen, president of National Farm School, and the presentation of the Henry W. Gross awards were among the features on the occasion of the fifth annual promotion exercises of the eighth grade of the Doylestown township consolidated school held in the Doylestown high school auditorium, last evening.

Crosby Sellick, a member of the school board, made the awards, and Assistant County Superintendent Albert C. Rutter presented the promotion certificates to 28 boys and girls.

Linghocken Garden Club will hold a flower show in the parish house of Forest Grove Presbyterian Church on Friday. In connection with the show there will be a display of patchwork quilts and old coverlets.

RUBBISH AND GARBAGE CONTRACTS ARE AWARDED

S. Langhorne Council Awards
Contracts To F. Reetz
and J. Buccello

IMPROVING STREETS

SOUTH LANGHORNE, June 4—Two separate contracts were awarded by South Langhorne borough council in meeting Monday evening in the council chamber, for collection of rubbish and garbage within the borough. Heretofore the contracts were awarded to Edward McHugh, who sublet the garbage collection to Joseph Buccello.

Joseph Buccello received the contract for garbage for the ensuing year, the amount being $294 per year; while the rubbish collection contract went to Ferd Reetz, Hulmeville, at the rate of $12 per collection.

The garbage is to be collected, according to the contract, twice weekly from May to October 1st, and once weekly for the remainder of the year.

A new light has been placed on Oak avenue, Holly Oak Manor, it was stated.

All bills were ordered paid. The street committee reported progress on street work. It was also announced that the stray dog situation is improved, following complaints from residents, and a drive to eliminate this nuisance.

In the absence of president, Charles Flaxman, Joseph Keating presided.

PICNIC ENJOYED

CROYDON, June 4—Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Harris, of "Kismet" Cottage, were hosts at the annual picnic of Sunday School class "7" from Allegheny Avenue Baptist Church, Philadelphia. There were 45 attending. Lunches, and hamburgers grilled on the outdoor fireplace, were enjoyed after games of tennis, quoits and bingo. Many received prizes. At sunset, when the flags were lowered, the entire group sang patriotic songs, ending with a prayer by the Rev. Amos Barton.

ROTARY PICNIC

EDDINGTON, June 4—Bensalem Rotarians picnicked last evening in a grove on the property of Creighton Vandegrift. The members of the club enjoyed volleyball, softball and boating. Just before dark the men saw two deer make their way across a nearby field.

Falls Township Graduates Plan Washington Journey

FALLS TOWNSHIP, June 4—Washington, D. C., will attract graduates of Falls Township high school next week, the group leaving here for the capital city on June 9th, and returning June 11th.

The party will include: Joseph Argenti, Warren R. Baker, Madeline M. Dorntauder, Thomas E. Doyle, Mary Jane Glocker, Malcolm Graham, Robert N. Graham, Jr., John Heibe, Ethel I. Jadlocki, Sonia D. Johnson, Edith M. Larsen, Virginia Lee Lewis, Evelyn C. Mercer, Francis M. Moon, Rose M. Neal, Dorothy E. Parr, Anthony C. Petruccio, Leroy J. Reed, Dorothy M. Roberts, Dorothy M. Rose, Lawrence Scott, William M. Shega, Jean H. South, Mary E. Thompson, Gladys E. Titus, Percy P. VanAken, Olive A. Vandenbergh and Richard W. Waddy, Jr.

MORRISVILLE SCHOOL TAX RATE PUT AT 27 MILLS

Rate is Increased Two Mills
Over That of Last Year;
Per Capita Tax is $4.00

NEW BUDGET ADOPTED

MORRISVILLE, June 4—A tax rate of 27 mills for school purposes has been set by the Morrisville Board of Education. The per capita tax is to be $4. The school tax rate has been increased two mills over last year and the per capita tax has been increased $1 over last year.

Two reasons are given for increased school taxes. One is the newly-planned brick school which will replace the present two-room wooden structure at the site of the present Capital View School in the Third Ward. This school will cost the borough about $25,000 for materials, with the WPA furnishing labor. The project is now in WPA hands, awaiting approval. The second reason for the higher tax is the loss in real estate assessments. Assessments, totaling about $200,000 on properties which have been taken over by the county because of unpaid taxes, have been taken off the tax duplicate and as a result the district faces the loss of about $5,000 in taxes. Because the district has been operating on a very narrow margin since the depression to avoid a tax increase, there is no surplus to absorb the decrease in income and the raise was necessary.

A budget was adopted for next year amounting to $141,350.

Harry W. Bauroth, Jr., To Graduate From Colgate

HAMILTON, N. Y., June 4—Harry W. Bauroth, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Bauroth, Radcliffe street, Bristol, is among 201 candidates scheduled to receive bachelor of arts degrees at Colgate University's 120th commencement exercises on June 9th.

Bauroth prepared at Bristol high school. At Colgate he has concentrated in German and zoology. He was a member of the varsity football and baseball teams during his sophomore, junior and senior years. He received a president's scholarship for each of his four years. He has been an active member of Chi Psi Mu, honorary pre-medical fraternity; Delta Sigma Psi, honorary German fraternity, the German club and Phi Delta Theta social fraternity.

HULMEVILLE

Joseph O. Canby and son, J. Olden Canby, Jr., are attending the convention of the Holstein Priesian Association of America in Lansing, Mich. Mr. Canby has two animals from his herd being sold in "The Brentwood" sale, which is the invitation sale of the year for that breed.

PICNIC FAIR

A picnic fair is scheduled for Friday evening at seven o'clock in Bristol Methodist Church social hall. Articles to be sold will include: Fancy work, fish pond items, frankfurter sandwiches, coffee, cake, ice cream, soda. A circus is planned, and there will be free motion pictures. The Sunday School is in charge of plans.

Family Affairs

(By "The Stroller")
"Family graduations" seem to be the thing in Bristol this year. When diplomas were presented to Bristol high school graduates at the Grand Theatre last evening, three sets of brothers and sisters were given their "sheepskins," and likewise two cousins were graduated.

Esther and Albert Tomlinson, Edith and Vincent Orzli, Helen and Vincent Boccardo were the brother and sister groups so honored; while Emma Spezzano and her cousin Peter Spezzano graduated together.

Ruth Bachofer, Tullytown, graduated from Bristol high school last evening, a few hours after her sister, Laura Bachofer, graduated from Tullytown grammar school.

TULLYTOWN, June 4—The commencement exercises of Tullytown school were held on the school grounds yesterday afternoon. Preceding the exercises a May Day play and dance were presented.

Following the invocation by the Rev. Samuel Gaskill, a play, "If I Were Queen," was staged. The players were Eleanor Gerhart, who took the part of a poor girl, who because she had the qualities of a queen was later to become one. Others in the cast were: Louis Napoli, Louise Bachofer, Louise Doan, Dennis Cavin; Harry Kamp was court jester; Earl Davis, robin red breast; Reynolds Clay, Mr. Woodchuck; Robert Freidrich, Mr. Froggie; Robert Heibe, page; Michael Pezza and Laddy Baker, lords; Virginia Walters, Dorothy Monti and Philomena Poane, ladies; Peter Cummings, Richard Baker and Robert Baker, train-bearers; Joseph Termyna, crown-bearer; Joan Swangler carried the four leaf clover, and Barbara Green presented the queen with a bouquet.

A number of girls dressed as butterflies did a dance, they being Irma Maz-zochi, Joan MacSherry, Jessie May-bury, Dorothy Carman, Marie Tum-minia and Shirley Brown. Three boys carrying umbrellas with streamers, represented "April Showers." The flower chorus and Maypole dance was done by Marjorie Swangler, Angelina Ryerk, Barbara Green, Clara Cutchell, Yolande Doto, June Pope, Joan Swangler, Muriel Burton and Patsy Slager.

The second part of the program opened with remarks by the president of the class, Norman White. Patty Clay read the class prophecy. Timely verses were given by several graduates, they being "Part of Speech," Bet-

Awaiting His Word

Washington, June 3.
WITH the fall of the strategically important island of Crete and the grave danger which that involves to the whole British position in the Mediterranean and in Egypt, the situation in the Atlantic, always basic in this war, protrudes more prominently than before. Over-shadowed for weeks by the spectacular events in Greece and Crete, never for a moment has the outcome there ceased to be more vital than anywhere else.

THE President made that wholly clear in his recent speech. It has been clear to every competent military and naval authority in every country since the fall of France. In unequivocal language, Mr. Roosevelt expressed the conviction that Hitler cannot win unless he dominates the sea and that we will not tolerate that dominance. "It can, it must and it shall be prevented," he declared. And then he added that whatever steps are necessary to insure delivery to the British of the goods we are producing will be taken.

—O—
WHEN these solemn statements by Mr. Roosevelt are coupled with his equally solemn statement that the present rate of Nazi sinkings of merchant ships is more than three times the capacity of the British to replace them and more than twice the combined British and American ship production, but one deduction is possible—to wit, that the outcome of the war depends upon the United States of America. If Mr. Roosevelt's utterance does not mean that, then it is meaningless. In so many words the President has declared that Hitler can triumph only if he controls the seas, and he has pledged us to prevent that control.

—O—
IN effect, we have taken on the job

BRISTOL HIGH SCHOOL HONOR STUDENTS

MARGARET RATHKE
First Honor Student

JENNIE DI BENEDETTO
Second Honor Student

Miss Rathke, winner of the Grundy medal, presented at graduation exercises of Bristol high school, in the Grand Theatre, last evening, secured an average of 96.633 for four years of high school work, the highest average ever attained by any student at Bristol High for that period. Miss Rathke resides at 1232 Pond street; and Miss DiBenedetto, second honor student, is a resident of 1124 Wood street. The highest average attained by a Grundy medal winner heretofore was 96.3, that being for a three-year course. Next year the awarding of this medal will revert to the three-year basis, due to establishment of a junior-senior high school.

Highest Average in School's History

"AMERICAN DEFENSE"

Papers by Honor Students Followed by Program "Struggle for Liberty"

A member of the class of 1941, Bristol high school, was signally honored last evening when the commencement exercises of the 58th class were conducted in the Grand Theatre. The valedictorian, Miss Margaret Rathke, who was presented with the Grundy medal and three other awards, secured during her four years of high school study the highest average ever attained for such a period at Bristol high, 96.633. The only other person nearing this high record secured an average of 96.3 thirty-one years ago. Miss Rathke's attainment was particularly outstanding, her average being based on a four-year course, while the 1910 winner secured the high attainment in a three-year period.

Seventy-five young women and young men were presented by the high school principal, David Hertzler, to the president of Bristol school board, Doron Green, who in turn presented them with their diplomas. This ceremony was the concluding feature of a most impressive program, the theme of which was "American Defense," with a "radio program," "The Struggle for Liberty" included. Awarding of numerous gifts by representatives of school organizations and service clubs of Bristol, was also a highlight of the evening.

The theme of the commencement presentation was well carried out in the color plan and decorative scheme, with a liberty bell as the central platform piece. After the processional "March of the Brave" played by a selected group from Bristol high school band, directed by a member of the class, Raymond Eckert, the graduates and audience sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," and saluted the flag, as three uniformed students, carrying the American flag and guns, stood at attention on the platform. The steps of the elevated sections of the stage carried out the patriotic plan in the national colors of red, white and blue. The invocation was made by Rabbi Gerson Appel, of New York City.

In the first part of the program featuring "American Defense," education's part in that defense was well brought out; and in the second phase of the program, "The Struggle for Liberty" was presented. One of the pertinent statements made during the first part of the program was that "Defense now not only means defense from warring nations as it meant in years gone by, but defense of the American way of life"; while in the second portion of the evening presentation, the struggle for liberty, as inspired by love of justice and brotherhood, was stressed.

Greetings were extended by Benjamin Lupkin, president of the class. Under "American Defense," the following spoke: "The Meaning of Defense," Sylvia Singer, third honor student; "Education for Society," Jennie DiBenedetto, second honor student; "Education for Intelligent Citizenship," Elizabeth Wilson; "Education for Personal and Material Resources," Margaret Rathke, first honor student.

"Determination" (Hayes), was an overture by the orchestra, directed by Charles Quigley, music director of Bristol high school; William Bensch read the essay which won for him the Mothers' Association prize, which award was made at Class Night exercises; and musical selections concluding the first half of the program were "I Love a Parade" (Arlen); and finale from "A Waltz Dream" (Strauss), by the high school chorus.

The announcers for "The Struggle for Liberty," which presentation showed the vigorous struggle for liberty, "American youths' proper heritage," were Robert Bauroth and Myrtle Collier. Other speakers, who capably brought to remembrance historic words of Patrick Henry, Susan B. Anthony, Abraham Lincoln, and others, were: Ervin Seyfert, Raymond Eckert, William Bensch, Betty Somers, Albert Tomlinson, Sylvia Singer, Mary Brown, Calvin Hutchinson, Philomena Micozzi, William Fry, Joseph Lannucci, Michael Peterpaul, Peter Spezzano. The early struggle for liberty for all during the Revolutionary War, freedom for the colored race during the Civil War, and the present struggle for freedom from war in the world was well shown; with emphasis laid on the fight in this country for freedom from such things as crime, unemployment, political graft, labor strikes, propaganda.

The graduates impressed upon the audience the need for "Liberty ever, as our guiding star," they urging the "grasping of the precious thing called liberty." In conclusion they stated "As long as there is a soul, the will to live in liberty can never die," concluding with the class singing "God Bless America." Also woven into the

THE PRICE BRAKE

President Roosevelt said he signed the 85 per cent parity crop loan measure with the understanding that government payments in addition to loans will be no more than necessary to bring prices to parity. That is, the administration evidently will resist any effort to put wheat, for example, above a parity price.

The loan is designed to give an average farm return of 97 cents per bushel. Soil conservation and parity payments which co-operating farmers will receive in addition to that will be no more than enough to give the farmer a return of perhaps $1.15 per bushel. The President said he understands farm leaders approve of that plan.

Should wheat prices tend to go higher in the open market and should the administration be opposed to higher prices, what can be done about it? Well, the government has a quite potent big stick in the form of some 200,000,000 bushels of loan wheat now supposed to be owned exclusively by the Commodities Credit Corporation through the failure of the original producing owners to redeem it.

If the Commodities Credit Corporation should start releasing that wheat to purchasers at prices lower than the open market, it would certainly put a brake on prices that would stop rise in the space of a dime.

PROBLEMS OF THE PEAK

Stuart Chase, economist and student and writer, thinks that the United States will reach the peak of its population in another 30 years. By that time the nation may have left behind it many of those problems which are sometimes lumped under the head of growing pains. But it does not follow that other problems will not take their place. It may be just as painful to slip down from the peak as it has been to scramble to the top.

At any rate, Mr. Chase predicts that overcrowding in schools will be automatically ended, that certain industries, such as milk production and toy manufacturing, will face declining markets while industries catering to the aged will be stimulated.

Among his recommendations for a broad program of adjustment Mr. Chase lists promotion of individual economic welfare; encouragement of larger families; provision for good education and medical care for every citizen, and modification of conditions of employment for women so that more may become mothers if they wish to.

If any one is inclined to question the accuracy of the Chase prediction of the time of the peak and its height, he might give heed to the fact that the statistical experts ten years ago predicted the population figures for 1940 so closely that they astonished themselves. "By applying the same successful efforts," Mr. Chase says, "the future population of the United States can be predicted accurately. It is estimated that our population will reach a peak of between 140,000,000 and 150,000,000 around 1970, and then begin to fall."

Mr. Chase points out that if the population had grown as fast from 1930 to 1940 as it did from 1920 to 1930 there would be 142,000,000 Americans in the country today. Somewhere in the decade, he says, the nation lost 10,000,000 potential citizens. But perhaps that loss was a gain. Who knows?

of beating Hitler—not on land, where the President points out, his extensions ultimately will be a source of weakness to him, but on the sea, where dominance is essential to his survival. Conceding that the British, at the present rate of cargo-ship sinkings, are unable to prevent Nazi control with the aid we are now giving, it is inescapable that if the President's pledge is to be carried out we must give more aid.

THE question of overwhelming concern at the moment is how and when this additional aid will be forthcoming. Mr. Roosevelt has said that conveying is outmoded, and it is generally agreed that a further extension of our Atlantic patrol and a greater use of American naval planes and vessels in the British fight to drive the Nazi submarines out of the sea lanes is indicated. It is known that plans for effective British-American naval co-operation against the submarines have been worked out as a result of British and American naval conferences here and in London. These plans, it can be stated on the best authority, were submitted to the President weeks before his radio talk. His complete acquiescence in them was given and they formed the base of his unequivocal declaration that Hitler control of the seas "can, must and shall be prevented."

Courier Classified Ads bring results and costs very little.

IN other words, the navy is ready for action; the only thing for which it waits is the President's signal to go ahead. He has been informed, one reliable source insists, that within little more than a month after he gives the order for full fleet participation in accordance with his plan the Battle of the Atlantic can be won. In that length of time, it is declared, the British and American forces can reduce the submarine warfare to futility and insure uninterrupted flow of supplies from here to England. Once that is done, the ultimate defeat of the Germans is assured.

THAT is the view of the military and naval experts, and that, in effect, is the view enunciated by the President. The prompt execution of the navy plan is the clearly indicated step. Yet the President delays taking it. There seemed every reason for following his speech immediately with the order. To delay appears as unnecessary as it is dangerous. The tremendous response to his speech made it plain that the logical steps to implement it would be received with the same sort of public approval. No adequate explanation of why Mr. Roosevelt holds back is advanced. Perhaps, now that he has returned to Washington, he will act. At any rate, he is being pressed very hard to do so.

ty Lovett, "Our Flag," Helen Luciano, "Qualities of Mercy," Earl Pope, "The American Flag," Bernice Michaels, "Invincible," Joseph Cutchinal, A cornet solo, "Ciribiribin," was played by Norman White.

The main address was given by C. Burnley White, Cornwells Heights. His theme was that "If you know to do a thing, do it." He spoke of a German scientist who found the formula for making a new metal, but threw it aside. "Another man came along and worked it out, and today we have aluminum. Both men had ability, but only one used it." He then quoted from the Bible, showing "We should not hide our light under a bushel." Mr. White told the graduates to read the Bible, saying it will mean more to them than anything else. "If you know how to do good, but don't, then it's a sin, according to the Bible." He added that each had their own place in the world, and no one can substitute for them.

Certificates were given to the girls of the eighth grade for completing a short course in home hygiene. These were given by Miss Laura Cook, of the Red Cross, who taught the course. Boys are to receive Junior Red Cross first aid certificates, they being taught by Jesse Carr, Croydon.

The American Legion medals were presented to the girls by Mrs. Strouse, the recipient being Miss Marie Napoli; the boy's medal went to Lee Gerhart, and was presented by William DeVoe, Chaplain of Robert W. Bracken Post, the Rev. Arthur Gibson, made a few remarks.

Mrs. Helen Nichols presented awards of the Home and School League. Each member of the class was given a pin, and to the boy and girl making the highest marks in the county examinations a special prize was given, recipients being Joseph Cutchinal and Bernice Michaels.

Principal George Zarr made brief remarks; and the diplomas were presented by Henry B. Clay, president of the school board.

Joseph Cutchinal played an accordion solo, "God Bless America;" the class then singing the class song, Lee Gerhart sang "I Am An American," with the others joining in the chorus.

The class, which had taken for its colors red, white and blue, the red rose for its flower, and "Impossible Is Un-American" as its motto, was composed of: Laura Bachofer, Elwood Burton, Mary Carman, Charles Carlen, Patricia Clay, Joseph Cutchinal, John DiCleo, Philip DiNatale, Mary Dorusac, Lee Gerhart, Betty Lovett, William Lovett, Helen Luciano, Joseph Mazzocchi, Bernice Michaels, Marie Napoli, Edith Nichols, Earl Pope, Marie Swinehart, Betty Swangler, Norman White, Frances Wright, and Shirley Wright.

"For SPECIAL SERVICE" Maryse by Rutledge

SYNOPSIS

Colorful report has made gay Marie Schuyler practically the world's current Glamour Girl No. 1 as she holds court off Corfu in the Mediterranean aboard her palatial yacht, Serenza—a queen of American millions with more to come. Her principal guest is Felix Norheim, a mysterious figure in international affairs. Meanwhile Marie's guardians, cooperating with the government, have assigned Tony Worth, a young lawyer, for "special service" in safeguarding Miss Schuyler. He is en route to the Riviera and has been "tipped off" to watch the alluring Baroness Theresa Lascar who was pointed out at the pier by Ed Keeler, an intelligence agent. Tony is mystified by an exciting incident in her cabin which featured the cryptic appearance of four white carnations. He has little success in making her acquaintance.

... Arriving at Naples, he flies to Corfu and sees the Serenza offshore. Aboard the yacht, Marie lolls with her guests, including Norheim, Marchese Lippi, Ray Sheldon, an American playboy; and Eve Pryne, a wandering widow. Becoming bored, Marie takes off in her speedboat.

CHAPTER NINE

The people on the yacht had kept watch on Marie from the moment she raced away. For, as Eve Pryne remarked to Ray, "You never know what she might do next."

Grizzled Captain Buckner sighted the speedboat from his bridge, and shook his head. He loved the lass for her dead father's sake; else he would have retired a year ago. He hadn't minded her coaxing ways when she took over as owner; he had rather enjoyed the gay parties she used to give along the Riviera.

But now it was different. The veteran skipper chafed at a loss of authority he couldn't define. For with the coming of Felix Norheim, evil had taken possession of the Serenza. In Nice, before they started on this strange cruise, his four seamen, his chief engineer and assistant, the steward and the pleasant young French wireless operator, had left him in the lurch, in spite of his pleadings plus threats. Some had vanished, incurring penalties of sea law; others had resigned in favor, they said, of better berths. Which was blighe, he felt sure.

Captain Buckner had had his first set-to with Marie when it came to hiring another crew. She could be as obstinate, he discovered, as her dad. The minx had gone over his head in the matter of signing on new men. Their references were right enough. He could pick no quarrel with their efficiency, but he hated the lot—a bunch of oily foreigners. And it didn't need a master mind to guess whose work that was. Norheim had hypnotized Benjamin Schuyler's girl—Norheim and Nino, his stooge of a count. But they hadn't been able, in shifting the crew, to replace Mr. Middleton, his first officer, and Mr. Swan, his second. No, sir, when it came to that, Captain Buckner had put his foot down! They stayed or he went! And what's more, he thought darkly as he followed the brilliant gyrations of the speedboat, as soon as they anchored in Cannes, he would have his say. "She's crazy!" he muttered aloud, and stalked into his cabin a few seconds before Marie's spill.

In the galley, Andre, the chef, and Hortense, Marie's maid, were enjoying a mid-afternoon snack. Andre's little cheese pastries and his cote au lait were something Hortense never could resist. But it wasn't only the little pastries she adored. Andre looked like d'Artagnan in the Three Musketeers, though he wore a tall white chef's chapeau instead of a hat and plume, and flourished a wicked skillet instead of a sword.

Andre this day was in a rage at Hio's fussing over tea and rice. "Ce saere Japonais!" he snapped. "I will make him sto-o-o in his juice, with his thousand little thinners of this and that. And his rice wine, and his—"

Hortense put a pretty finger to her pretty lips. "Not so loud, mon cheri," she whispered. "One never knows who listens. But the Marchese—quel beau type—what a handsome type! Mademoiselle finds him charming—Mon Dieu, will you look at her now in her little boat, how she goes! She will kill her self—" And then Hortense let out a scream.

In the wireless room, Hio watched the speedboat skim across the bay. His eyes grew opaque behind his horn-rimmed glasses. Then he turned back to his panel, adjusting the headset upon his small flat ears. But he expected nothing more to come through. He had received two messages that afternoon, both of them unpleasant. And he was in no hurry to convey them to the austere Norheim.

The first message, from Friedrich Haensel in Cannes, stated that he and the Russian would wait only a puppy emerging from a burrow of cushions on the wireless lounge. "Gosh, watch her go!" He went to stand beside the Marchese.

Nino Lippi gave him a look of cold dislike which said clearly: Mind your own silly business; then turned his gaze towards his girl in the speedboat.

"Look—where—you're—going!" Ray suddenly yelled as if Marie could hear him. "Phew—!"

Norheim was in the small office of his suite. He had unlocked one of the filing cabinets, pulling out a section which dealt with Wall Street. It made good reading, especially a typewritten paper which listed Schuyler holdings; among them, U. S. Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph, government bonds and large blocks of real estate in New York City where values few days longer. As the German put it, the situation was too delicate to be prolonged.

The second message was from Luigi in Naples. He reported that the Baroness Lascar—in spite of the white warning he had delivered to her on the liner—was leaving tomorrow, Tuesday, on the de luxe train for Brindisi. And Brindisi was only five hours' boat-ride from Corfu and the Serenza!

Hio lowered the earphones and turned his unblinking scrutiny again to the bay. He grinned when the speedboat turned over; but it was more of a grimace than a grin. The gods would decide...

Sitting on the aft deck, where Marie had left them when she sailed off, Mrs. Eve Pryne, Ray Sheldon and the Marchese Nino Lippi watched the speedboat.

Eve fluttered light draperies in the depths of her comfortable chair. "Marie seems put out," she murmured, her china-blue eyes resting rather thoughtfully on Lippi. "You two haven't quarreled, have you?"

"Of course not." Nino sounded annoyed. He strolled over to the rail, his gaze following Marie's erratic course. He wished her nature were more plastic. Once they were married, he would attend to that. But he wished he had met her before the black day in Rome when he had run across Felix Norheim.

If it weren't for Norheim, Nino would have the girl's youth, beauty and wealth all to himself. Only fear of the so-called "Mongolian" held him in an organization whose aims or "causes" left him indifferent.

Ray Sheldon set down his second gin cooler and poked forward his inquisitive profile. He was like a small, round, near-middle-aged

Painting and Sculpture Exhibit Now at New Hope

The New Hope Art Associates will present their June exhibition of painting and sculpture, opening today, at the New Hope Art Gallery, on the grounds of Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope.

In keeping with the gala spirit prevailing in New Hope during June, the Associates have assembled one of the finest exhibitions yet to appear in the gallery, and it will include several canvases recently returned from national shows. The Artist of the Month plan has been suspended temporarily, to make room for this more comprehensive exhibition, since some of the pictures are large in size.

Patrons of the Art Gallery have expressed keen interest in the Sketch Room Subject Shows, which feature small, inexpensive paintings. Each month the exhibition deals with specific subjects, and for June the sketch room exhibition will consist of mid-summer scenes.

The New Hope Art Gallery is open every day in the week, with the exception of Monday, from two to 5.30 p. m. Beginning June 6th, the Gallery will be open evenings, Monday through Saturday, from seven to 8.30.

A professor of philosophy, played by Thomas Mitchell, is told by his physician, the role played by James Stephenson, that he has only six months to live. He wonders what he can do in the remaining time to make his life mean something to the people he loves, and rid the world of someone who constitutes a menace. Such a person is Ketti, played by Mona Maris, an art gallery owner who hires a young artist, portrayed by Jeffrey Lynn, to paint copies of old masterpieces which she passes off as the real thing.

BRISTOL THEATRE

"A Man Betrayed," a Republic picture with John Wayne, Frances Dee, and Edward Ellis as stars, which may be seen at the Bristol Theatre where it is now playing, was a cinch from the beginning to get the good reviews from critics it has received. Why? Because John C. Moffit, the author who wrote the original story, is the widely-known film and drama critic for the Kansas City Star.

Known for his plays and his intelligent analyses of films and pictures, Moffit spent much time in Hollywood previously, turning out scripts for "A" films at Paramount Studios.

FLEETWINGS NINE GAINS WIN OVER THE BADENHAUSEN TEAM

Leinheiser Tightens Up After The Second
Inning

FINAL SCORE IS 6 TO 3

"Reds" Pica Supplies Winning
Punch To Break Up
Close Game

EDDINGTON, June 4.—Little Karl Leinheiser tightened up after the second inning and hurled the Fleetwings workers to a 6-3 triumph over the Badenhausen team last evening on Turner's field.

Leinheiser, former Bristol high school twirler, allowed just three measly singles and pitched hitless ball after the second canto to earn his hill triumph. He set down five of the boiler-makers on strikes and should have had a shut-out victory but for errors by his mates.

The winning punch to break up the close ball game was supplied by "Reds" Pica in the first half of the seventh. Pica stepped to the plate in the seventh and found Leinheiser on second base as the result of a hit and stolen base. The Fleetwings' second-sacker was having a terrible night, both with the stick and in the field.

He had committed miscues in the first and second innings which led to the scoring of a pair of Badenhausen and at the stick he was a complete bust, tapping out in front of the plate and fanning twice. He faced Dean on the occasion of the seventh, picked out one to his liking and walked him into right-center for a three-bagger to score Leinheiser with the winning run. Before the rally was over, two more markers crossed the plate.

The losing moundsman, Paul Dean, was tapped for nine hits. Besides Pica's three-bagger, Frank James nailed him for a home run blow to right in the second frame. Dean struck out seven batters but five errors behind him marred his performance.

Lou Sassi, former Brooklyn high school player, continued his hitting streak by getting three out of four.

DIAMOND NINE WINS; DEFEATS AUTO BOYS

With a 11-2 victory over the Auto Boys, the Diamond aggregation moved into a triple deadlock with Edgely and St. Ann's, for first place in the Bristol Suburban League, in a one-sided tilt played on Leedom's field.

There was little doubt to the Diamond victory as "Lefty" Keogan held the Mogganmen to three hits and Johnny Stallone wielded his heavy bluegown at the plate.

Stallone drove out two home runs and a double in three official trips to the platter. He walked on his other appearance and counted four times in the game. A check of the records revealed that every hit made by Stallone thus far this season has been an extra base blow.

His two four-baggers raised his total home runs to three. In his last game against St. Ann's, Stallone had a pair of triples.

Both "Loggie" Bragg and Manager Morgan who hurried for the losers were hit hard.

Carbon county man, each of whom had business transactions with the defendant.

Of the four women on the jury, three were for conviction.

The jury was called before Judge Boyer about 9.05 in order to learn whether they could reach an agreement. The deadlock, which existed at that time, never changed. One man and the three women were for conviction.

Although Judge Boyer urged the men and women to reach a verdict, if at all possible, taking into consideration the expense to the county of trying the case again, he explained that he had no quarrel with their inability to reach a decision.

The jury was composed of Alfred McLaughlin, Bristol; Alice Reidler, Langhorne Manor; Nathan Myers, Point Pleasant; Helen H. Moyer, Telford; Mary C. Olson, Langhorne, R. D. 1; Harry M. Lair, Morrisville; Carl F. Wilkie, Croydon; B. Harrison Haldean, Danboro; David M. Rau, Durham; E. Paul Vansant, Langhorne Manor; Edna Schuyler, Edison, and Walter Cooper Bristol.

Expect Attacks in Syria
London, June 4.—British military circles issued a grim warning today that "hell is likely to pop in Syria at any minute."

This foreboding word was issued as reports poured into London of drastic measures taken by the Vichy Government to defend Syria against any possible attack, including an anticipated British one.

Meanwhile, pressure constantly increased in London for a British move against the French-mandated Near Eastern territory, where units of the "rearmed French air force" were reported massing.

French statements that the French Empire will be defended were answered by Britain with a flat announcement that this country will continue its policy of attacking German forces wherever they are found. London is convinced that huge numbers of German war planes and other Nazi effectives are based in Syria.

When full proof is obtained of the reported German military infiltration into Syria, it was stated, Britain "will act."

Authoritative quarters expressed belief that "for once" Britain has taken the initiative away from the Germans.

They said this was accomplished through the sudden clearing up of the Iraq situation, which enabled the British to complete preparations with regard to Syria.

In contrast to the attitude of British circles, Allied and neutral diplomatic quarters adopted a somewhat despondent view. These circles declared themselves unable to understand Britain's delay in acting in the Middle East in view of the German Luftwaffe's occupation of Syrian airdromes and the alleged pro-Axis attitude of the Vichy Government.
